Though I've done a few, I don't recall seeing many patterns for cowgirls, especially ones who are armed and maybe dangerous.

Most of this pattern is well suited for a vertical grain so there should be no problem with cross grain except for the brim of her hat.

SELF RELIANT

You might consider carving the rifle barrel and part of the stock out of something harder than basswood so it will not be a weak area. It isn't cross grain but it is quite thin.
